O DIRECTORS AND SHAREHOLDER OF PUBLIC COMPANIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS." SIR,-Allow me through your paper to draw the attention of shareholders in Local Companies to the action of the General Managers of the Ice Company, at that company's annual meeting held yesterday, viz., that the General Managers, being aware that their ideas and those of the shareholders with regard to a dividend were at variance, left the matter in the hands of the shareholders. This is a departure from the action of Hongkong directors generally, and it would be well if the action of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co. at the Ice meeting yesterday was followed when directors know that their views and those of shareholders differ. It is an open secret that the opinion of the majority of the shareholders in the Hongkong and Whampon Dock Co. Limited differs from that of the majority of of the directors of said Company with regard to amount of dividend to be paid for the past six months. Looking at the Co.s' meetings (3) held yesterday it is evident that shareholders are at length beginning to take some little interest in their own affairs. It is to behoped that the Dock Company's meeting at Ila.m. on Saturday will be largely attended, and that the burning questions of 7 or 8 per cent dividend for the past half-year 2 will be fairly and squarely settled by the proprietors themselves .- Yours, &c.,

THE ENGLISH MAIL.

The P. and O. steamer Coromandel, with the English mail of the 21st ult., arrived here yesterday afternoon. The subjoined telegrams are taken from Ceylon and Indian papers:-

ENGLAND AND THE EVACUATION OF EGYPT. LONDON, 6th February. In the House of Commons on Saturday Mr. W. Cremer moved as an amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the Throne that the immediate British evacuation of Egypt be proceeded with. In reply, Sir James Fergusion stated that British control in Egypt last year had been attended with unequalled success, notably in matters connected with finances, taxation. Civil Government, and police, but there remained still much to be done and it would be impossible for England to withdraw entirely from Egypt until the pledges for her responsibility in the country had been fulfilled. The amendment was rejected by 263 votes to 97.

THE APOLITION OF THE CORVER IN EGYPT. LONDON, 7th February.

France and Russia are opposing an Egytian decree-devoting a quarter of a million pounds for the abolition of the Corves which has been re-established by the Government.

PRANCE AND GERMANY. LONDON, 6th February.

A more hopeful feeling prevails regarding the relations of France and Germany. The Bourses of Vienna, Paris and Berlin are again strong, The announcement concerning the German military loan is not confirmed. The decree calling out the German Reserves summons them for twelve days' practice only. Count Herbert Bismarck has re-assured M. Herbette, the French Ambassador. LONDON, 7th February.

· Not long ago I was talking with an old gentleman who has for years been in the iron business as a commission merchant in a Western city, who, early in his career, went: to England to make a study of iron minufacture in conjunction with a visit for pleasure. "One day," he said, "I went to a London book store to find a certain work on metallurgy I could not find in America, and while there a pleasant old gentleman came, in and began looking around pretty much as I was doing. We came together presently, and soon were thatting pleasantly on books and other matters, and I told him who I was and what I was seeking. He told me be knew the work, and, though it was rare, thought we might find it, and at once begin a search through the rack shelves and out-ofthe-way corners, and finally came up smiling from a dark place with the book in his hands. I thinked him, and, taking the volume to the dealer, I ordered it had aside, and at the same time ordered the late numbers of Macaulay's works, which were appearing in parts and some of which I had brought to America. I teld my now friend that in my estimation Macaulay was the greatest English writer, and that I had read everything he had written, as far as I knew. He smiled pleasantly, and after a few monants' further conversation we parted, with the hope of meeting again. The next morning I left London for York, and when I had settled myself in the compartment assigned no I found my travelling companion to be the old gentleman I had met in the book store the day previously. I was glad to see him and tole him I-was bound for York, and he said ne was going there too. This pleased me and I settled down for a good talk, for he was exceedingly entertaining and thoroughly the gentleman. We made no stops for some time, and when we did I noticed a large crowd at the station. a "There must be some distinguished person aboard the train, I said, and these peo- [146] ple are here to see him."

" Possibly," he answered, with a smile like the one he gave me the day before among the books, and we continued our talk. At the next station there was a large crowd, and getting outside I asked what was going on, and some one told me Lord Macaulay, was on the train. I went back to report to my friend. " Lord Macaulay is on the train," I said 'that's what brings the people out and I'd give a good deal to see him myself." He smiled again. 'Lam Lord Macaulay,' be said, with almost a school-girl blush, and I reached out with American enthusiasm and shook hands with him so heartily that he laughed till the tears ran down his cheeks. " When we reached York, he invited me to dine with him, and at the dinner he extended further invitation for me to visit his HOCKS, BURGUNDY. home and his family, and I did it, and to this day Micrulay is one of my brightest and pleasantest memories."

RACING ROGUERIES.

About half a century ago, at Newmarket several horses who stood high in the betting at different times suddenly went off sick just before the rice for which they were entered; some died, others recovered, but all were dis-'abled for the time being, and favourites that a few hours previously outstripped levery rival would come straggling yards behind the field. Every one knew they had been "nobbled," but for a long time the perpetrater remained undiscovered. At last, however, a notorious scoundrel-one Den. Dawson-was caught red-handed poisoning the troughs.
